MRS. ANNIE COLE, who celebrated her 92 birthday on Feb. 9 is shown with her great-granddaughter, Sharon Cole, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benny Cole. "You know," said Mrs. Cole, "I never thought I would live to be this old! I came to this farm as a bride from Dry Fork, Pittsylvania County in 1909." The former Annie Carrington Anderson, she was married to the late Benjamin C. Cole. They had three children, James, who lives on the farm with his mother; Byron who lives just up the road from the farm home, and John, a retired dairyman. She has three grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren. "I never worked away from home," said Mrs. Cole, "but I raised a lot of chickens, and that was a lot of work. We used to have approximately 800 laying hens at one time and I'd dress and sell at least 20 chickens at the Curb Market in Lynchburg every week. I reckon I have sold as many eggs as anyone in this county," she said with a smile. (Photo by Frances H. Paulette)
